COMMON HOME CONVERSATIONS BEYOND UN75 MEDIA KIT

A SERIES BY THE PLANETARY PODCAST
In Common Home Conversations, you will hear from leading global experts on how the proposal of recognizing the existence of an intangible global common without borders can change our relationship with our planet.

The Common Home of Humanity has proposed an ambitious new global pact for the environment. The adverse effects of climate change span across borders and beyond territories. Recognizing the Earth System as a Common Heritage of Humankind is the first step in restoring a stable climate, a visible manifestation of a well-functioning Earth System.

This proposal's cascading effects would be systemic and tremendously impact international relations and economics, opening the doors to restoring a well-functioning earth system. Common Home Conversations is the place to discuss a new social contract between society, economy, and the Earth System.
This week's episode features renowned climate change expert and earth system scientist Will Steffen. We take a look at a new area of science that gives us a new way of looking at our planet and how the Earth System is highly interconnected, functioning as a single integrated system - connecting us all.
